Kombinierte Vogel-Checkliste der Cabañas San Isidro & Guango Lodge

Zusammengestellt von Mitch Lysinger

Die folgende Liste beinhaltet alle vorkommenden Spezies in den Privatreservaten der Cabañas San Isidro (2.100-2.400 m) und der Guango-Lodge und Umgebung innerhalb eines Radius von 5 km, wie z.B. der "Guacamayos Ridge Trail".

Die "Häufigkeits-Kategorie", jeder Spezies zugeteilt (common=verbreitet, rare= selten, etc.) ist ein Versuch die "wahre Häufigkeit" einer gewissen Spezies festzustellen. Zum Beispiel ist der Chestnut-crowned Antpitta als "verbreitet" aufgelistet, den man aber meistens nur hören und nicht sehen kann. Eine detailliertere Checkliste mit natürlichen Geschichts-Informationen steht Ihnen in den Lodges zur Verfügung. Eine vollständigere Darstellung der Vögel um die Cabañas San Isidro und der umliegenden Gebiete ist in Bearbeitung.

Die Vögel, die mit einem Sternchen gekennzeichnet sind (*) sind mit ihrem "Gesang" auf einer CD " The Birds of Cabañas San Isidro " aufgezeichnet. Diese kann in der "American Birding Association" oder über "Amazon" oder direkt in der San Isidro Lodge erworben werden.

Die Vögel mit "fettgedruckten" Vogelnamen wurden an den Cabañas San Isidro und/oder der Guango Lodge gefunden. Die taxonomische Reihenfolge, Fachbezeichnung und Abundanz-Kategorien basieren auf Ridgely, R.S. und Greenfield, P.J. 2001, The Birds of Ecuador.

Beachten Sie, dass viele Vögel wie z. B. der Anhinga oder Crane Hawk sich in den Gebieten der San Isidro Lodge und der Guango Lodge außerhalb ihres gewöhnlichen Bereichs befinden, sodass die Abundanz, die in den Büchern festgehalten wurde, verändert und verbessert wurde, was sich bei der Vogelbeobachtung als nützlich erwiesen hat.

Tiefere Gebiete

Die folgenden Spezies sind nur bekannt für die tieferen Lagen (etwa 3 km oder mehr) am Fuße des Guacamayos Ridge Pfades. Dieses Gebiet wurde erst kürzlich zugänglich gemacht durch den Bau eines befestigten Berg-Trails, der am entferntesten Punkt an eine neu verlegte Öl-Pipeline reicht – dieser "Pipeline Trail" reicht etwa 4 km hinab.

Der Wald und ebenfalls die Vögel verändern sich dramatisch entlang des "Pipeline Trails", wenn man in tiefer gelegene Gebiete hinabsteigt. San Isidro hat sich dazu entschieden, diese Vögel nicht in die Hauptliste aufzunehmen, da sie hauptsächlich in die höheren tropischen Zonen fallen und nicht in den Rahmen passen, den sich die San Isidro-Liste gesteckt hat. Nichtsdestotrotz haben wir die Vögel hier vermerkt – auch wenn es sich um ein Gebiet handelt, das oft aus Zeitgründen oder mangels körperlicher Energie nicht besucht wird – da es nur zu Fuß zugänglich ist.

Indem diese Spezies wie folgt separat aufgelistet werden, hoffen die Cabañas San Isidro, dass der Besucher zumindest eine Idee davon bekommt. Da der untere Teil des Trails erst kürzlich geöffnet wurde und nur wenige Vogelbeobachter soweit vorstießen, muss noch sehr viel erforscht werden.
